

Mid-Week Visitor

Meets Students—

One of the aims of Chancellor Durwood Varner was to meet UNO students. His comment to the student at the door of the Student Center was, "You must be the state's highest paid door-man."

With UNO Leadership—

Between engagements on the campus there was always time to discuss a few matters with the administrators, too. Flanking Varner are Dr. George Rachford, vice-president in charge of campus development, and, of course, President Kirk Naylor.

Tries the Food—

The new chancellor was the guest of honor at a luncheon in the "Top of the Center" restaurant, located on the second floor, Student Center. He is seen here with Mrs. Kirk Naylor.

Merger Top Item

"Making effective the concept of the merger," is the most pressing problem according to the new University of Nebraska Chancellor Durwood Varner.

Varner was on campus Wednesday for the entire day touring the campus and meeting with the campus leaders.

In an luncheon Monday, the President of the Board of Regents Robert Raun of Minden told why Varner was chosen to succeed Clifford Hardin who became Secretary of Agriculture.

Raun said there were several reasons for picking Varner, the top being he was a proven administrator and is able to get along with both students and faculty and still maintain public support.

Varner, later at a question and answer period, said he has "no bag of magic, just a sense of commitment to building a greater university." He added there is a "great sense of excitement about the Omaha campus' potential."

MBSC Talk Attracts Few

By BOB STONE

A meeting Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. in the Eppley Conference Center to discuss the expansion of the Milo' Bail Student Center turned up some good proposals despite the small number of people in attendance.

On hand were Richard Tompsett, MBSC Policy Board president, Mike Nolan, Vice President of the Student Senate, James Erixon, and Fred Ray and Thelma Engle of the Student Center.

Tompsett opened the discussion by speaking on the background of the MBSC Policy Board. He said one of the Board's main objectives is to provide Mr. Ray with "guidelines" which will enable him to run the Student Center "more effectively."

Tompsett said the MBSC needs to update its policies and to expand. "We want to avoid the pitfalls of one-man made rule," he said.

Vice President Nolan told the gathering "from three-quarters of a million to one million dollars will soon be available" for use in expanding the Student Center. One person expressed concern late in the meeting because Nolan and his expansion committee were apparently not aware of something as "basic" as the exact amount available to the Student Center for expansion.

Construction is to begin around Sept. 1.

A questionnaire is available on page 3 of today's Gateway for students to make their views known on the MBSC expansion matter.

Those in attendance at the meeting were invited to voice their opinions following the initial remarks of Nolan and Tompsett.

One student complained about the fact MBSC room 312 is no longer open for study as it had been in the past.

A number of complaints were heard with regard to the Bookstore. One student argued the prices are generally too high, there is a shortage of books, and previously used books can not be resold to the Bookstore.

'Racial Balance'

The president of the Black Liberators for Action on Campus, Robert Honore, said the University administration will not be vitally concerned with the Student Center "until it is run by students." He also said the MBSC personnel should be "racially balanced."

Another person suggested an audit be made on the entire Student Center operation by a certified public accountant.

Student Center Director Fred Ray said the expansion of the building may cause a small rise in the operation of the Student Center. "Any time you increase buildings . . . you increase operating costs," he said.

Ray added Student Activities Fees will not rise because of expansion of the Student Center.

Nye Fills Head Spot

Dr. John Nye, assistant professor of sociology, assumed duties Monday as the acting director of the UNO Center for Urban Affairs.

Nye replaces Dr. Wayne Wheeler, Center director since 1967, who resigned the position to assume full-time teaching duties.

The selection of the replacement was made by the nine-member Urban Affairs Policy and Advisory Committee; the group is composed of three representatives from each of the University's campuses.

Nye, who joined the University faculty in June 1968, had been supervisor of the Data Bank/Information Center at the Urban Affairs Center. He has also been teaching urban sociology and other courses.

Nobby in Feb.

Nebraska Gov. Norbert Tiemann will be among speakers at a Feb. 18 program to be co-sponsored by the Young Democrats and the Young Republicans at the University.

The event is scheduled from 3-5 p.m. in the Student Center Ballroom.

Gov. Tiemann will discuss "What Nebraska Can Do for UNO and what UNO Can Do for Nebraska" with UNO President Kirk E. Naylor.

Plans for the program are being formulated by Mike Richardson, president of the Young Democrats, and Douglas Schumann, president of the Young Republicans.

Photo Replay

Due to time limitations, the schedule for the taking of senior photos for the 1970 Tomahawk has been cut from Feb. 9-13 to Feb. 9-11.

Because of the change, seniors who have not already had their pictures taken for the yearbook are urged to sign up for them immediately in Engg. 116.

The deadline for signing up is Feb. 9. Those intent on graduating in either June or August may be pictured.

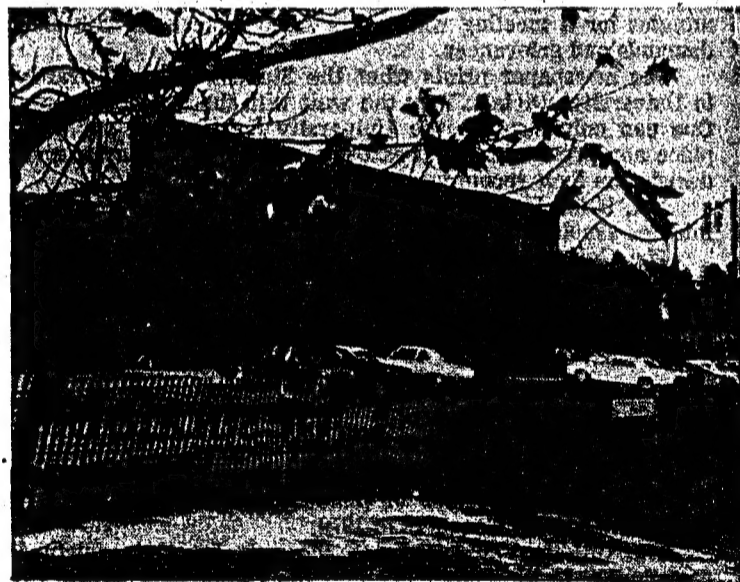

Student Figure Falls by 1,420

Enrollment may have fallen as much as 1,420 students for the Spring semester, statistics from the University Registrar's Office indicated Tuesday.

Although total enrollment figures will not be available until after the close of registration tomorrow, it appears this semester's enrollment figure will be near 10,700, according to Registrar Virgil Sharpe.

The September 1969 figure was 12,120.

Approximately half of the students attending this semester are doing so on a full-time basis.

New Stickers Needed?

Late in September the University Senate Parking Committee approved converting the open grassy area immediately east of the Library Office Annex to a temporary parking lot for construction employees.

At the meeting it was noted that creating the temporary lot would free parking spaces west of the Engineering Building then being used by construction workers.

Wednesday afternoon a Gateway check showed 11 vehicles parked on the rocky but muddy temporary lot. Four cars displayed green faculty permit stickers.

The lot can accommodate about 25 cars.

Report Now Available

The complete Ad Hoc Committee Report on Student Demands and Grievances is now on reserve file in the University Library, available to all members of the University community for their perusal.

Editorials

It Matters Too Much

"Nearly one in every six students at the University of Nebraska at Omaha felt the Student Center was the primary area among administrative and support services needing the greatest improvement."

The statement in a report by the Ad Hoc Committee on Student Demands and Grievances indicates the concern students show for the operation of the Student Center.

Wednesday the newly-created Student Center Policy Board invited students and other members of the University community to meet and discuss with them priority needs for a proposed Center addition.

It is well the SCPB is going to the student body for suggestions; as the results of the Ad Hoc Committee's questionnaire so clearly points out, students have more than a few suggestions they would like to make.

We have been told information of the hearing was sent to all recognized student organizations, whatever that last phrase really means. There are also many posters around campus announcing the event.

But, Wednesday was the third day of school. Organizations may not have met over semester break. Students are still trying to adjust to new class and work schedules. There just hasn't been enough time to contemplate even upon something as serious (especially for the future) as priority needs for an expanded Student Center.

The Board is supposed to report to Dr. George Rachford, vice-president of campus development, by March 1 on their suggestions. The Gateway does not feel it is too much to ask of an administrative office which completely ignored a Student Senate request of 1968 for a sidewalk north of the Student Center. (The same office which took nine months to move the Student Senate headquarters from MBSC 250E to MBSC 301), a few extra weeks for discussion about anything as significant as the future of the Student Center.

The Gateway stands behind the hearing idea and strongly urges the Board to schedule another hearing in addition to Wednesday's.

We know Student Center Policy Board Chairman Richard Tompsett and Expansion Sub-committee Chairman Mike Nolan are interested in the student viewpoint on Center expansion. Do those who make the final decision, though, care enough to extend their deadline in order that students can be fairly heard?

Minutes in 'Closed File'

For over a week now the minutes of the special University Senate meeting concerned with the report of the Ad Hoc Committee on Student Demands and Grievances have been inaccessible to the student body.

The Gateway, in attempting to get the minutes for publication, has been stymied by replies like, initially, "They aren't ready yet," and now, "The president must act upon them first."

The minutes, we have somehow learned, have been forwarded on to President Kirk Naylor for his action.

One wonders why the Gateway cannot have access to the minutes for a meeting which was solely concerned with student demands and grievances.

The newspaper prints what the Student Senate forwards on to University officials. Why the wait with the University Senate? One can only surmise the University Senate does not want to place any press-initiated pressure upon President Naylor and his decision on their recommendations.

Yet, if the University Senate is truly a democratic body, the minutes should be available to all, including the students.

The Gateway has reason to believe the Senate acted favorably upon the committee's recommendations. But secrecy has denied the student body, through the Gateway, any knowledge of what really happened. The question is when will we find out?

Procedure Questionable

Dr. M. Gene Newport, professor of management, and Gary Blum, assistant professor of philosophy, have been named the University's Great Teachers of 1970.

The Gateway congratulates the pair for their outstanding contribution to the University and their final selection by President Kirk Naylor as award recipients.

The two professors present an interesting balance to the initial Great Teacher classification: Blum, one who presents the image of being a liberal thinker, one whose thoughts are directed more toward the younger generation, and Newport, an individual whose work involves many of the University's bootstrap program participants, one who may be considered having a more conservative standing.

But, although acknowledging the merit of the recipients, the Gateway must question the method of Great Teacher determination.

It is disturbing to note each college was allowed to submit two names to President Naylor before his final selections. This allowed the smaller colleges, such as Engineering and Technology and Business to have as much proportional representation as Arts and Sciences; a college having twice as many faculty as the other two combined.

Although it is difficult to argue the validity of a selection system which chose such outstanding faculty members as Newport and Blum most assuredly are, the Gateway still feels a change toward more equity in selection is necessary.

'The King Can Do No Wrong'

By DANIEL KEVIN POWERS

The Peter Principle states: "In a hierarchy, every employee tends to rise to his level of incompetence." A corollary to the Peter Principle states: "An unplanned growth in the services demanded of a hierarchical organization tends to have a multiplier effect on the amount of incompetence created."

UNO in the last several years has undergone a very rapid and possibly uncontrollable unplanned growth, changing from a small personal community college to a large impersonal urban University. The administrators who were exhibiting the normal degree of copelessness are now almost completely incompetent through no fault of their own. One might draw an analogy between UNO and a small family business which grows into a large corporation; the problem with this analogy is that a business plans and controls its growth for its own benefit.

UNO, on the other hand grows here there and everywhere and nobody is quite sure what to do about it. An analogy which might provide more insight and less logic would be Orville Wright taking the controls of a 747 in mid-flight. What would you do if you were a passenger?

Article III, Section 15 of the By-Laws of The Associated Students which explains election procedures states: Each ballot must be signed in ink by two judges. Initials must be placed on outer fold of ballot." (sic) To the best of my knowledge this has not been done in any Student Senate election in the last two years. Therefore there is no legal or constitutional student government; realizing the necessity for action in a time of crisis; I hereby proclaim myself President, Vice-President, Treasurer, and Secretary of the Student Body; President, Vice-President, and Secretary of the Junior Class; and last but not least, announce my appointment to the three vacancies in the Senate seats of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

I will announce in the near future the time and place of all elections. I ask all my subjects to understand the grave nature of the crisis we face, and ask them to overlook any actions which might seem arbitrary or unjust.

By the authority vested in me by the Board of Regents, natural law and my various positions I command:

1. An immediate end to the "bootstrap" program.

2. A complete integration of all faculty restrooms, parking lots, and/or dining rooms.

3. Steve Wild and Mike Nolan remove themselves from my offices within one week.

4. An apology be made by the University Senate and President Naylor for allowing conditions to exist which caused 54 members of B.L.A.C. to be arrested.

5. By the power of eminent domain and/or squatter's rights the Milo Bail Student Center is to be in the sole possession by the UNO Student Body.

6. That hereafter the student center be called by its new name, the George W. Norris Student Union.

7. In conclusion if reasonable compliance is not made with these commands, I deem it necessary to raise an army to enforce law and order on this campus.

the FIFTH column

'What to Call It'

By DAVE SINK

A most frustrating undertaking for this student has been finding a name for this column. It's not easy to find a catchy, pertinent title possessing a respectable degree of originality.

Racking my brain seemed futile, so I sought advice from some of the veteran journalists on the staff. Now I won't say that these literary giants weren't helpful. Rich Brown, for instance, suggested that I call it "Sink or Swim". I rejected that particular zinger, Rich. It's not that I don't appreciate it, you understand. But confidentially, stick to "Brown Baggin' It."

Since other journalism department suggestions included "From the Kitchen Sink" and the unforgettable "Sink Runs Hot and Cold," I decided, regrettably, to seek other advice. Fortunately, it was at this point that I ran into Milan Anich, a junior majoring in pre-law and militarism. He suggested the title "The Fifth Column." Initially, I was impressed by the idea but uncertain about its acceptability by the students. To be frank, I was sure they wouldn't have the slightest idea what a "fifth column" is.

Milan dispensed with my objections by suggesting that I devote this first entry to a short background of the fifth column. It was at this point that I consulted by own dictionary. Splendid idea, Milan. Here goes.

During the Spanish Civil War four rebel columns advanced against the capital city of Madrid. Rebel sympathizers within the city engaged in espionage, sabotage, and other subversive activities within the defense lines of the city. The fall of Madrid shortly thereafter has been attributed to the activity of this "Fifth column," and thus we have the origin of the phrase.

In the coming weeks of this term, I, too, will engage in a program of subversion (are you listening, Dean Pfisterer?). However, the campaign, hopefully, will not be destructive, except to the extent that it attempts to expose the illogic of many of America's contemporary thought patterns, and thus aids its destruction.

Let us hope that, with luck, a combination of journalistic comment and readership criticism will result in some constructive action. The only alternative is that this fifth column will be throwing journalistic bombs for the next thirteen weeks.

TV viewers who get tired of watching the escapades of Inspector Lewis Erskine or the "regulars" such as Rodney Dangerfield, Norm Crosby and Peter Genero on Ed Sullivan's stage might want to switch to the ETV Network (KYNE-TV, Channel 26 in Omaha) for relief.

"The Show" is the name of a new variety-talk show geared to the under-40 audience aired Sunday evening at 7. Controversial figures of nationwide prominence as well as top progressive pop musical artists are featured.

Auditions for the March 20-22 presentation will be held next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evening (Feb. 9-11), 7-10 p.m. in MBSC 312. Students interested in auditioning should contact Theater Director Dr. Edwin Clark or Associate Director Fred Vesper.

LOOKING AHEAD . . .

Next week's entertainment highlight will be the UNO Opera troupe presentation of "Il Trionfo dell'Onore" (The Triumph of Honor) by Alessandro Scarlatti. (Details in next Wednesday's Gateway.) Dr. J. L. Cornette, associate professor of mathematics at Iowa State University will give an undergraduate lecture at 1:30 p.m. Feb. 11 in MBSC 314. A graduate lecture will immediately follow a 4 p.m. coffee hour.

ODDS AND ENDS . . .

Last week a display advertising the KOIL Bridal Fair and containing at least 50 invitation applications was set up beneath the main bulletin board on the first floor of the Student Center. Because it hadn't received the required "Dean of Students" stamp, it was removed by a student (not this columnist) and placed beside the entrance to the Student Activities Office. The display has not been seen since. What would Fred Ray and his staff want with 50 Bridal Fair invitations???

"Brown Baggin' It" is a column for the University community. Clubs, organizations and individuals who wish publicity of campus or community student-oriented activities should submit such information in the form of a press release to GATEWAY Entertainment Editor Richard D. Brown no later than one week prior to desired publicity of the event or events. The Scoreboard

In the fall of 1959 Carl Meyers, an all-city football selection at Omaha Creighton Prep, the Most Valuable Player in the first high school Shrine football game and a high school All-American "picked by somebody, I forget who" took the field for the University of Wyoming freshman team.

He was a quarterback under Coach Carl Selar, now a Nebraska assistant. Meyers was given a football scholarship by Wyoming Head Coach Bob Devaney, now resident football god of Nebraskaland.

As a sophomore, Meyers played defensive back, mostly.

"I had a pretty good sophomore season," the head baseball coach at the University of Nebraska at Omaha said. "But I wasn't happy, going from a big city to a small town."

So, after his third semester, defensive back Carl Meyers transferred to Omaha University.

The slim Meyers, as an Indian, displayed a slick quarterbacking talent for Coach Al Caniglia that brought OU a pair of Central Intercollegiate Conference crowns. For himself, Meyers broke several records, including passing yardage, total yardage, scoring passes for a career and season touchdown tosses.

Virg's Influence

After a few years of being an assistant coach for the Indians, Meyers will take over the baseball position from 22-year veteran Virgil Yelkin, a victim of a kidney infection.

The 28-year-old father of four had a good tutor in Yelkin, who won 75 per cent of his games as coach. Yelkin, recovering at home, praises the selection of Meyers.

So how is this young kid going to do, now that he is faced with his first head coaching spot?

"No two coaches do everything alike," Meyers said. "Most of my coaching experience is with Virg, however, so this will reflect on what I do."

"Eventually, it will all depend on the type of players who will be playing."

'Organization'

One gets the impression the new coach is intent on his job. On his desk is a paperback book entitled "How to Play," published by The Sporting News. Under it is a hard-bound book called merely "Baseball."

He is conscious of the intricacies of coaching.

"Devaney impressed me as a fine organizer. This is an asset in a good head coach. He makes sure everything is put together."

"You can win a heck of a lot of double-headers if they are spaced right and you pick your opponents."

Young Team

The talent Meyers will be working with will be young. There are only 10 returning lettermen. A bright side to that, however, is that the veterans provide strength up the middle, a place coaches build their defenses around. Three pitchers, two catchers, a shortstop, second baseman and some outfielders are returning.

The young season (pitchers and catchers are working out already) is not without its goals.

"We want to improve our overall team defense," Meyers said. "We felt we lost due to the lack of this in the early part of last year."

"Second, we'll try for better bunting, and third we have to hit with men on base."

Meyers will be looking for four strong pitchers, a factor needed, he feels, when the club begins playing in tournaments leading up to the conference and NAIA meets.

Most of the players will report for drills around Feb. 16.

"Usually it's been voluntary, but this year we're asking them all to come out."

The Indian season begins in March in the warmer weather of the south.

Goal A Winner

Once upon a time, after Bill Englehart, baseball was the only winner on campus. Then Carl Meyers and Al Caniglia and a strong supporting cast put football in the winner's circle again.

Wrestling suddenly reaches a national scope, and basketball is improving. With baseball out of the national tournament for a few seasons, the coaches and players may find themselves suddenly forgotten.

Carl Meyers certainly hopes people will have no reason to ignore his Indians this spring.

Allen Scoring Touch Tops Indian 16-Game Statistics

Arthur Allen continued to pace UNO basketballers in scoring after 16 contests.

The junior forward is hitting at a 24.8 clip—almost double second place Mark Langer's 12.8 norm. Langer is a freshman.

Allen also leads the club in rebounding with 118—a 7.9 average per game.

UNO's opponents are holding a four per game edge in team rebounds, but the Indians are averaging over a point a game more, despite trailing in field goal percentage, .405 to .439.

Hanson: Losses 'Realistic'

Tonight and Saturday night the Indian cagers face two rough conference foes in Southern Colorado and Colorado State College.

SCS boasts the RMC's top scorer in Gary Dunning and is currently leading the Mountain Division of the RMC.

Colorado State Indian Mat Foe

Colorado State College, the defending Rocky Mountain Conference champions, will be the fieldhouse guests of UNO Saturday night at 7:30.

The second difficult opponent in three days for Don Benning's matmen, Colorado State is ranked third among NCAA College Division teams. The Indians met Athletes in Action Thursday night.

The Greeley, Colo., school defeated conference foe Adams State, 18-17, earlier this season. Adams State has won the NAIA title the past two seasons, and was rated first by The Amateur Wrestling News at the first of the year. UNO was picked second.

The visitors boast top performers in Lagner, 126-pounds, Paul MacArthur, 118, Mel Cridder, 150, and heavyweight Ike Sherlock.

After losing four out of their last five games, head basketball Coach Bob Hanson still remains what he calls "realistic."

He explains his realistic view this way: "At the beginning of the season I expected our record to be better than it is now (10-8). But you have to be realistic about it all."

"The teams we have played were experienced. They had juniors and seniors at most playing positions. But we had mostly sophomores and freshmen at those positions."

"Also the teams we have played were good basketball teams. Fort Hays, Washburn,

Meet Tonight

UNO indoor trackmen make their season debut in a double dual meet with Westmar and Tarkio colleges tonight at 7 in the fieldhouse.

This year's team is expected to be strong in the middle distances, bolstered by many runners from the cross country team. The most notable are Pat Rinn, Rich Carey, and Chuck Wallerstedt.

With the addition of some great freshman talent the track team might be stronger in the field events.

Intramural Action Now Back Into Full Swing

The 442's defeated the Bulls, 52-39, to win the semester break intramural basketball tourney. Eliminations began Jan. 27, with the finals for the sixteen-team tourney concluding Feb. 2.

In the semi-finals, the Bulls edged the Trojans, 52-51, and the 442's trounced Lambda Chi's, 58-43.

A 24-team tournament is now underway with play-offs scheduled for Feb. 11, 18 and 24th. Finals for the single elimination tourney are set for 6:00 p.m. Feb. 26.

The first intramural men's track meet will begin Feb. 25 at the fieldhouse. Contestants may enter as a team or on an unaffiliated basis. There will be three field and seven running events.

Intramural bowling is underway every Wednesday afternoon at West Lanes. No new teams can be entered, but individuals wishing to bowl are requested to join.

For further information concerning any intramural activity, contact Bert Kurth, Room 250 in the Student Center.

Rockhurst are all real good teams."

His realistic view seems very calm yet concerned. He pointed out just one of his major concerns was his team's lack of height.

"In most of our game we have had to play 'catch up' ball. This is due mainly to the fact that we weren't able to get the rebounds. Every team we have played has been taller than us."

Then how does he explain putting 6-1 Leonard Todd at a forward spot? "We weren't getting any offense from the other forward spot so that's why we moved him. Offensively the move has worked very well, but defensively it has not."

The Feb. 3 loss to Rockhurst left the season cage record at 10-8. Even though the score was 108-91, Hanson does not feel it was due to his team's lack of defense.

But a bright spot in the Rockhurst loss was Arthur Allen. Although he was playing on a bad ankle he scored 31 points and set a single season point record with 433 points.
